

What is "core" vs "any"?

In the firewall, there are two logical interfaces named core and any respectively.

Core locates, at the heart of the firewall, all traffic from the physical interfaces are forwarded to core to be controlled by security policies.

Any represents all possible interfaces including core.